It is now fully decided that the senior class of R. H. S. will start for Washington, D. C., March 23 to be gone about one week. This arrangement will take the place of some part of the graduating exercises, class day being given up on evening only being used for presentation of diplomas and a few essays and music.

MONTPELIER

Edwin O. Gould is to finish work for Dean W. Edson March 1 to go on the road for the Lincoln oil company of Cleveland, O., and plans to travel in the New England states.

Dr. J. Edward Wright is having a hard time to locate his trunk. Dr. Wright returned from the west two weeks ago. He had the trunk re-checked in Pittsburgh, Pa., so that it should be somewhere between that place and here. It is in it many lectures and sermons among other things and a fine fur coat. The railway companies allow payment for only $100 worth of apparel but this is a small amount as to what he will lose if the trunk is not regained.

Superior Judge W. H. Taylor, of Hartford, Conn., the city yesterday looking after court matters. The first part of the afternoon was occupied with the Fernandez hearing after which a hearing on petition for temporary alimony in the case of Minnie Westcott vs. Ira M. Westcott was given. This is a suit for divorce brought on the grounds of intolerable severity and refusal to support. Temporary alimony amounting to $250 a week was granted, until the further order of the court. Some other minor matters were disposed of.

Miss Alice Boyd has finished her school and returned to her sister's in Barre.

Mrs. W. J. Houghton and daughter, Bertha, and Gilbert Needham were at Herbert Houghton's last week.

HAPGOOD SNUBBED.

Wrote Protest on Postal Card, Is Told to Reply by Sealed Letter.

Rutland, Feb. 10.—M. J. Hapgood of Rutland has written a postal card to State's Attorney Joseph C. Jones offering to go to jail for Mrs. Lyman J. Crockett of Shrewsbury, who was a drover of cattle from Shrewsbury, along the road whistling an "old-time" song as if it was a middle of the week. Well, sir, I'm glad to hear it. "On, ye, sir, 'deed are they, an' I'll gie ye an' instance o' it. Last Sabbath just as the kirk was a-bellin' there was a drover of cattle frae Dumfries comin' along the road whistling an' lookin' as happy as if it was a middle of the week. Well, sir, our lands is a God fearin' set o' lairds, an' they were just coulin' out of the kirk—o' they yekit upon him an' a' most killed him."

Then he went on to say that he would go to jail for the woman. Not wishing to transact the state's business by postal card the state's attorney has written Mr. Hapgood for a sealed reply.

CURRENT COMMENT

The Illiterate Jury.

After twenty-five days of weary effort, during which venues carrying 5,019 names were drawn, the attorneys in the prosecution of Col. Duncan B. Cooper, his son, Robin J. Cooper, and John D. Sharpe for the murder of ex-United States Senator E. W. Carmack have at last succeeded in securing a jury that would seem to be about as ignorant a set of men as any one could be tried by. Four of the jurors, it is stated, are unable to read or write; two more understand English only indifferently, while every one of them swore that he had not read a newspaper since the killing, and some had not read one for a decade. Not that the attorneys are to be criticized for this result. If the laws of the state make all persons incompetent who had talked with a witness or with anyone who had talked with a witness, and a newspaper that prints verbatim testimony is to be regarded as having talked with a witness, clearly juries are not often to be found among the literate or those interested in matters of any public concern.

The incident is of interest because it affords an exaggerated illustration of one of our too little recognized jury evils—the premium that is placed upon ignorance and stupidity. The situation in Tennessee is somewhat better than that in Kentucky in 1824, though as surely it is bad enough. In 1824 an indictment for murder against a son of the governor of Kentucky was found. All over the state it was talked of, so that term after term it became impossible to make up a jury, the attorneys for the defense claiming, and the judges agreeing, that the venire men examined had from what they had read or heard formed an opinion sufficiently strong to justify their exclusion. The legislature was appealed to. It passed a law providing that an opinion formed from rumor only should not constitute a ground for challenge, and then, three years after the indictment had been found, the case was taken up for the ninth time. The result was the same. The defendant's father then stepped in and pardoned him on the ground that he had "no doubt of his being innocent of the foul charges," and that the prospect of obtaining a jury is entirely hopeless.

But if conditions in Tennessee are better than this, they are not so very much better. There is not much difference between disqualifying one man because he has formed some idea of a case from general rumor and disqualifying another because he has read the newspaper. The Tennessee hypothesis seems to be that justice resides not in the mind that is awake and receptive, but in the mind that is undeveloped and asleep.—New York Globe.

EAST MONTPELIER

Mrs. Fred Townsend was in Barre last Saturday.

A. Gilmore has been in very poor health all winter.

The town auditors finished their work Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Austin Foster spent Sunday in Montpelier with friends.

N. B. Rivers finished work at the grist mill last Saturday night.

Miss Stella LeBaron went to Chalais Friday, returning Saturday.

Joe Bishop has returned from Orange to work for H. M. Farnham.

Mrs. Sparrow of Barre City came Saturday to care for Mrs. John Long.

Mrs. Abbie Mallory has been away all winter, sewing in Barre, Granville and Williamstown.

A letter received by Mrs. Lavigne on Tuesday, said Mr. Lavigne was gaining at the hospital in Burlington.

East Montpelier creamery paid patrons 32 1/2 cents per pound for butter, oil test, the last half of January, paid Feb. 15.

Twenty Western horses were unloaded at the local station here before daylight Monday morning for H. M. Farnham.

The grange entered for the musical convention and cleared $8.45, which was a good deal better than they did last year.

Fred Coker, who sold his farm some time ago, has hired a large farm in Marshfield and will move there about March 1.

Mrs. Annie Burnham, who has taken care of her cousin, Mrs. Long, for several weeks, has returned to her home in the village.

Elmer Goodell and son, Mrs. Nora Russell of Cabot came last Saturday and have been visiting relatives in town all this week.

Dr. Stacey of Barre came again last Saturday to see Mrs. Field, who had seemed better for a short time, but was taken worse Friday.

H. M. Farnham returned from Chicago Saturday morning, went to Orange on business in the afternoon, and with his wife attended the Bartlett wedding reception in Plainfield in the evening.

Julius Robbins of Worcester, Mass., and his niece, Miss Howard of Johnson, came last Friday to visit their cousin, J. F. Robbins, until Tuesday. Saturday they went to see the Barre quarries.

Recently three accidents with the derrick have happened at the station while unloading granite, any of which might have been serious, and Wallace Hayford, a teamster, and station agent Bartlett just escaped being killed, one by a chain and the other by a wire rope which broke.

LABOR'S DUTY PLAIN.

Must Maintain Its Sovereignty With the Ballot.

CRISIS GRAVE AND IMMINENT.

With the Toller Rests the Responsibility of Safeguarding His Own Rights and Interests—Labor's Friends Should Be Supported at This Polls.

The sovereignty of labor must not be obscured or belittled. The great humanitarian impulses of the new national life tend to protect and foster the principle of labor's sovereignty. It is unfortunate that there is leveled against our humane movement the bitterest antagonism, but being in it we become a part of the great struggle to overcome it and make the principles underlying organized labor indivisible and indissoluble.

It is this bitter and ignorant antagonism that forces opposition to organized labor in the framework of our laws, federal, state and municipal. But when we become unified on the all powerful sovereignty of labor and amalgamate our forces wholly apart from the doctrine of separatism and with a single purpose in view we shall lay the foundation for that decent respect which is inherent in all rational minds touching labor's great and grave crisis.

Notwithstanding sinister criticism aimed at labor by vested interests and their political affiliations and influences, the right and the duty of organized labor lie in alignment with those humanitarian impulses wholly in sympathy with the toilers' wise and prudent efforts which will sustain the cause of human liberty in any policy which may be set forth respecting the necessities of all our activities, whether as workers or as citizens, as the weapons to safeguard and promote the rights and interests of the workers, of the great masses of the people.

In view of labor's broad, comprehensive and humanitarian purposes we must confess to the people's dereliction of duty when lawmakers having to do with industrial issues and questions draft laws inimical to these safeguards—laws that when passed upon by the supreme court, itself composed of minds in part or wholly unaware of labor's prime interests, are interpreted and ruled upon adversely to labor unless congressional relief shall come backed by the people's insistent demand.

The issues confronting the new national life are labor issues primarily and fundamentally.

Organized labor cannot, if it would shrink its responsibility here.

The toilers should not be on the defensive with respect to vital issues affecting them. They should and must devise an offensive movement looking to a firmer and more stable establishment of their inalienable rights.

Nothing is voluntarily contributed to the interests of labor on the part of the wealth possessors or of partisan politicians.

It is a paradox second to none in the line of human evolution and progress that labor, the sovereign, should plead for safeguards at the hands of its own creatures.

Congress and other lawmaking bodies must be made to feel that labor is entitled to its just share in enactments particularly affecting its own rights and interests.

Labor has little to expect at the hands of those in responsible charge of the last session of congress.

We have much to look for in policies outlined and sought to be carried forward that have their initiative in the organized labor movement.

In improving the condition of the workers, in securing for them their rights, liberty and sovereignty, there is not involved the tearing down or the destruction of any one or of anything. The labor movement and its results encompass the well being of every man, woman and child the country over. Organized labor is not destructive, but constructive.

It devolves upon organized labor by organization, agitation and education to shape the next executive and the next congress to ends that will justify the maximum efforts which may be put forth in behalf of the great cause of the rights of the workers, which in its essence is the cause of human liberty.

We call upon the workers of our common country to stand faithfully by our friends, oppose and defeat our enemies, whether they be candidates for president, for congress or other offices whether executive, legislative or judicial.—American Federationist.

AN OLD SUPERSTITION.

During stormy weather on the coast of Nova Scotia native skippers clip the hair of beard and head to use them as "oil on the water." It being an ancient belief in those parts that storms are caused by the devil lashing the ocean, the sacrifice of hair thrown into the angry sea is really a sacrifice to the evil one.

WHISTLING ON SABBATH IN SCOTLAND.

Concerning the Scottish prohibition of whistling on the Sabbath Dean Ramsay has a characteristic story. A famous Glasgow artist met an old highland acquaintance unexpectedly. "Donald, what brought you here?" "Oo, weel, sir, it was a hand place you; they were bad folk, but they're a God fearin' set of folk here." "Well, Donald, I'm glad to hear it." "Oo, aye, sir, 'deed are they, an' I'll gie ye an' instance o' it. Last Sabbath just as the kirk was a-bellin' there was a drover of cattle frae Dumfries comin' along the road whistling an' lookin' as happy as if it was a middle of the week. Well, sir, our lands is a God fearin' set o' lairds, an' they were just coulin' out of the kirk—o' they
